

Training to become an ADI with ELITE

Our training options are fair, transparent, and designed to help committed people into our industry, and build our business as a reputable and quality driving school. We are a family run business, that has steadily grown since 2008 to now having a team of over 20 great ADIs. ELITE's instructor trainers Ian Sedgwick and Garry Commey are on ORDIT (Official Register of Driving Instructor Trainers) registered. This means that we have undergone further training, testing, and accreditation by the DVSA (Driver and vehicle Standards Agency) to ensure we are providing the highest standards of training to PDIs (Potential Driving Instructors). Therefore, you will receive personalised training and advice throughout the qualification process.

As part of our full training package we provide life-long subscription to our associate on-line e-learning video training resources and workbooks, as well as over 50 hours of in car tuition, giving you well over 200 hours of training. All in car training is carried out on a one-to-one basis, unless trainees specify they want to 'buddy up' and share sessions by observing one another's training. Our trainers also teach learner drivers and invite our trainees to sit in on and observe them teaching.

You can train at your own pace around your current commitments, whether it be one or two training sessions a week, or more intensively. The length of time it takes to qualify will very much depend on how much training you can fit around your other commitments, how much time you can dedicate to studying outside of your training sessions, and waiting times for DVSA tests. We have had trainees qualify within 6 months of starting training. However, you need to be aware that there will be a lot of information to absorb, and you need to allow time for research, revision and practice between each training session for all 3 parts. You may find that training too intensively overloads you with information, and therefore becomes counterproductive. To become a successful, knowledgeable, confident and professional driving instructor will happen over time, so bear this in mind if you are looking at other possible training providers offering fast-track, crash or intensive training courses.

If you have any questions about the qualification or the training process, or would just like to have a chat with one of our trainers please do contact us using the details below. We are open and honest and believe in providing all the information you need to make the correct decision. We have steadily grown our reputation as a quality training provider, and driving school since starting the business in 2008, by providing quality, value, and service. It is in the interest of the development of our business to train and recruit new instructors of a high calibre that will continue that ethos.
